

Cutter Quilt Holiday Countdown

At BadAss Quilters Society

Featuring Apple Season by Sharon Holland

Copyright 2020 BadAss Quilters Society www.badassquilterssociety.com

Thank you to Sharon Holland for the permission and use of her APPLE SEASON mug rug pattern for this cute cutter quilt project. You can find this FREE pattern at Sharon's website <https://www.sharonhollanddesigns.com>.

This project is a riff on Sharon's mug rug using a cutter quilt section to substitute for the top fabric and batting in her pattern. I did use a piece of vintage fabric for the back since newer fabrics are harder to blend well with vintage goods. I also used the whole apple, not halves since I would have had the bulk of yet another seam to deal with. Don't have any felt for the leaf?.. rough cut a piece of green fabric and fray the edges and then tack it on.. cute!

This pattern would also be ideal for use with Vintage linens, orphan blocks and vintage tops that are in no condition to quilt anymore. Use Sharon's pattern as your jumping off point and make sure to drop a photo comment over on FB when you do this since I want to see your creative take on this project!